LISBON MAN IS FOUND SLASHED TO DEATH

PETER CRISAFI MILL WORKER, IS "TAKEN FOR RIDE" BY FOES

Mutilated Body Found in Bushes at Logstown.

BLAME BLACKHAND Murder Victim Had Been Missing Since Monday.

Believed to have been the victim of blackhanders, the body of Petro Crisafi, 30, mill worker, missing since last Monday night, was found slashed to pieces in bushes on the Evans farm near Logstown, two and one-half miles northwest of Lisbon, at 6:30 o'clock last night.

Body Found By Children
The discovery was made by school children. They notified Harry Morris and John Chilik, who called Sheriff Wright. The body was taken to the Eells undertaking establishment, where Coroner J. M. VanFossan, East Palestine, will conduct an inquest Sunday morning.

Dominick Mordaca, 29, and Joseph Mordaca, 33, said to be brothers, are held in the county jail at Lisbon pending an investigation. The man came to Lisbon two weeks ago from Muskegon, Pa., to accept jobs at the R. Thomas & Sons' Co. porcelain plant.

According to Sheriff Wright, Crisafi is believed to have been "taken for a ride" in a Dodge sedan, which was seen in the vicinity of the home of Jerome Toltie, his half-brother, at 2154 West Washington street, Lisbon, where the victim had been visiting.

Near the murder victim's body Sheriff Wright found an empty .32-caliber revolver, believed to have belonged to Crisafi. The empty shell indicated that the gun had been fired.

Head, Face, Hands Slashed
Crisafi's head, face, arms, breast and hands were slashed.

Crisafi formerly lived in Steubenville but came to Lisbon about a month ago to visit with Toltie. He was partially paralyzed.

The place where the body was found is a quarter of a mile from what is known as the Saltwell road.

Children, returning from school Thursday afternoon, saw the body but supposed the man to be asleep. When he was still there Friday afternoon they reported the discovery.

In the victim's pockets was found a note book containing the names and addresses of several friends. He also carried several letters, one from Steubenville, urging him to attend the funeral of a friend held there last Sunday.

Crisafi came to this country four years ago. He is said to have a wife and child in Italy.

The Moral Is THINK.

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review.)

PROFESSOR STEINACH, of Vienna who seeks to make old men young, when he ought to worry about making them useful, has a new invention.

Serum, made of the pituitary gland, tucked away inside the skull, works wonders in rejuvenating aged rats. Animals, half dead, are made young. Steinach should try that on Wall Street bears. They need it.

Another 4,000,000 share day, brokers getting out of bed loaded with over-night orders, 15,000 shares of General Motors was the first bite of one financial breakfast. On that one order two brokers made $3,750. No wonder stock exchange seats are covered the $1,000,000 mark. "Buy 15,000 at the market," that's all, only 15 words.

DR. WINFRED SACKVILLE STONE, who is a lady, says "man is superior to woman, mentally, physically, artistically and psychologically." That is not all true, especially the "physically and psychologically" part of it. But suppose it were all true. (Continued on Page Eight, Col. Seven.)

He had been speaking approximately four minutes, when he was seen to suddenly grasp at a nearby table. Listeners hurried to his side as he slumped to the floor. When a university physician arrived he pronounced death due to a heart attack.

BREMEN CREW PLANS HOP-OFF FROM GREENELY ISLAND TODAY

German-Irish Fliers Span Ocean in Western Jump.

LAND IN QUEBEC

Ice-breaker and Planes Ready to Effect Rescue.

HALIFAX, N. S., April 14.—Although it was reported that the stranded German-Irish fliers might try to hop off for New York today from ice-bound Greenely island, Canada marine men familiar with conditions said they believed this would be impossible, even if the Bremen were refueled. It was lack of fuel that forced the trans-Atlantic monoplane down at Greenely island yesterday.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The Junkers monoplane Bremen will attempt to take off "some time

BREMEN HAVEN TREELESS PLACE

HALIFAX, N. S., April 14.—Greenely island, where the trans-Atlantic flight from Dublin to New York is a high barren piece of rock and ice, half a mile long, some seven miles south of the Labrador coast.

The island, a mere dot on the map, rises 80 feet above the sea. It is moss covered, but without other vegetation, and boasts not a single tree. It is formed something in the shape of a camel, with two large humps, and it is between these that the Bremen rests.

For this reason it is regarded here as most unlikely that the plane could take off, even though undamaged, should fuel be shipped to the island. The island is uninhabited except for the tender of the government lighthouse and a half dozen keepers and their families.

today" from Greenely island, Quebec, it was announced by A. A. Schroeder, general passenger agent of the North German Lloyd line.

Word to this effect from the trio of fliers was relayed by Canadian sources to Schroeder today.

The question of fuel supply was not revealed in the message, and puzzled aviation experts here. The fliers exhausted their gasoline supply in their flight with head winds over the northern Atlantic, according to reports. The ice-bound island on which they sought refuge was not believed to contain any amount of fuel. It was suggested that perhaps the trans-Atlantic fliers planned a short flight to some point on the mainland from where they would continue their journey to New York by other means.

The North Atlantic ocean has at last been spanned in a westward flight.

The second place winner will receive $50, third place winner, $25, and the fourth place contestant, $10.

A crowd estimated at 400 attended the contest. Attorney W. H. Vordrey presided and introduced the speakers. Music was in charge of the high school orchestra.

Judges were: W. F. Jones, judge of the Columbiana county common pleas court; Dr. Warren O. Hawkins, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, and A. L. Rabenstein, superintendent to schools, Chester, W. Va.

Miss Hall's subject was "The Present Significance of the Constitution." As the first orator, she told of the writing of the constitution in Independence Hall, Philadelphia, at the close of the Revolutionary war. The framers, she declared, "voted the courage of their convictions, and in closing she made an appeal to the public to 'cherish, honor and obey the constitution' to make the nation, 'bigger, better and more beautiful.'"

FIRE FOLLOWS EXPLOSION OF GASOLINE IN MISSOURI CITY

Rescuers Drag Victims From Beneath Fiery Embers.

MANY INJURED

Flames Envelope Two Adjoining West Plains Buildings.

WEST PLAINS, Mo., April 14.—Thirty-four persons were killed and many others were seriously injured when a terrific gasoline explosion wrecked a crowded dance hall here last night.

The total damage was estimated by police at $500,000.

Battle Blaze Throughout Night
Rescuers dragged victims from beneath fiery embers as the walls caved in and mountainous tongues of flame enveloped the debris. Two adjoining buildings were caught in the molten blast and soon were a mass of flames. Throughout the night firemen battled the fire.

Today officially the bodies of 33 young men and women were lined up in a morgue while almost as many more persons were in hospital burned seriously.

Rain Cuts Death List.
At least 60 persons were known to have been in the dance hall when the explosion occurred. Authorities said the dance was a weekly affair, and stated that had it not been for a rain, the death list would have been much larger.

Weekly dances drew a crowd of 500 persons. The matter of checking the list of the dead and missing difficult. Some of the bodies were believed to have come from surrounding towns. The explosion trapped many persons in the flaming dance hall.

The force of the explosion caused the walls of the structure to cave in and many of the dancers were literally blown off their feet and dashed against buildings across street.

Rescue workers were driven back from the flaming building by the intense heat of the blaze, and later were hampered when all electric lights were put out of commission.

Rescuers Are Killed.
The business houses destroyed were the Adams building, adjoining the dance hall and garage; a theatre, a restaurant and a commission house. The front and rear walls of the theatre building were blown out and the

New England Firms
Use Research Bureau
To Aid Business

BOSTON.—Improved control of sales activities, avoidance of excess stocks, help in sales direction, and assistance in instruction and stimulation of salesmen are among the advantages to be gained from the application of research to selling problems. The idea is set forth by representative New England firms in "The Use of Research in Sales Analysis," the first of a series of reports on the uses of research in business in New England, according to an announcement by the New England Council.

The survey was undertaken for the purpose of determining to what extent research was used among the New England business firms.

ANNIE LAURIE'S TIMELY ADVICE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a girl of 16. I know a boy who is about 17 years old. We have been great friends until last week. He brought me home from a show one night and I asked him if he was going to kiss me goodnight. He did and then turned and left. He hasn't called on me again. I have seen him on the street several times and he has spoken to me but he never stops to talk as he always did before. He is the first boy that ever kissed me and I asked him to half in fun. What do you advise me to do? Do you think he was disappointed in me? NEVER AGAIN. There is nothing you can do my dera, but profit by this mistake and avoid committing the same error again. Undoubtedly this boy was disappointed in you and while he may indeed be the first boy who has kissed you, your request surely must have led him to suspect otherwise. It would be difficult for you to renew this friendship as any advances you would make might be misunderstood by this boy: I shall have to advise you to let him go and accept the loss of his interest as part of your lesson. You have seen for yourself that a request such as you made, even though you did it half in fun, has put you in a most questionable and undesirable position. I am sure I need not caution you against doing this sort of thing in the future. It is possible that if you are obviously as charming and sweet as you were before, this boy will realize that he may have been mistaken after all and that despite your actions, you are really the girl he thought you were.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I have a dear girl friend; she has met my mother and father, and knows them well. When she visits me and brings her boy friend, is it proper for me to introduce her friend to my parents or should she?

PEGGY: If this girl knows your parents well, it is quite proper for her to introduce her friends to them.

12 EUROPEAN AIRMEN LOST
IN ONE WEEK

Aviation Starts Early
This Year to Take Toll.

"ACE" IS VICTIM
France, England and Australia Mourn
Deaths.

LONDON.—Aviation has started early this year to take its toll of human lives in Europe. Within one week the most disastrous in the history of aeronautics, twelve lives were lost.

To this number Great Britain sacrificed three of her foremost and renowned air pioneers; the Hon. Elsie Mackay, beautiful and intrepid daughter of one of the richest men in England; Captain W. G. R. Hinchliffe, a distinguished war and commercial pilot; and Flight Lieut. Kinkead, one of the most brilliant high-speed pilots in the world.

The Mackay-Hinchliffe flight was the most secretive and romantic in the history of aviation. For hours after they hopped off from an ice-coated flying field it was not known where they were heading. For two days it was not confirmed that Miss Mackay was aboard the plane. Even Mrs. Hinchliffe did not know where her husband was going.

Viscount's Daughter. Of middle height, dark and vivacious, and known to her friends as a woman of steel nerves, the Hon. Elsie Mackay was the third daughter of Viscount Inchcape, the shipping magnate. She possessed everything a young woman could desire. One of the best dressed women and best dancers in London society, she was an expert horse-woman and had achieved fame in the English movie world, where she was known as Poppy Wyndham.

As for Hinchliffe, he was considered one of the most skilled pilots in the United Kingdom, and won fame during the war, when he fought his way through a squadron of enemy planes to destroy two observation balloons, behind the enemy's lines. He also took part in four successful attacks on enemy aerodromes, and was credited with destroying many enemy planes. During one battle his left eye was shot out by a machine-gun bullet.

Imprisoned within the cockpit of the fastest flying machine in the world, Flight Lieut. Kinkead dove to his death into the waters of the English Channel at a speed estimated to have been over 300 miles an hour.

Air Force Ace. He was an "ace" in the Royal Flying Force, and it is believed that his death was due to the fumes from the fuel of his engine, which consisted of a mixture containing ethyl lead. It has been revealed that he complained of feeling sick during his test flights, and that he did not like the smell of the petrol fumes.

Among the other victims of air disasters during that fatal week were: four French aviators; five English airmen and one woman; one Australian. The woman was Lady Cawbery, a distinguished aviatrix, and pioneer of flying in East Africa. She was really an American woman, her husband having dropped his title in 1920, when he became an American citizen. She met death when her plane, in which she was instructing a friend, crashed to the earth, killing both instantly.

Man Conquers

The Bremen, manned by a GermanIrish crew, has beaten the aviation hoodoo on the so-called jinx day, Friday, the thirteenth.

Marking the first time that a heavier than air flying machine has made the westward hop across the Atlantic, the Junkers monoplane, in charge of Baron Gunther von Huenefeld and Captain Hermann Koehl, German war hero, and Colonel James Fitzmaurice, chief of the Irish Free State aerial forces, who set out from Baldonnel field, Dublin, early Thursday morning, were forced down at noon yesterday at Greenly Island, off the coast of Labrador.

Their feat, in which all the world rejoices after fearing the intrepid flyers had met the fate of seven others who had attempted the voyage, means that man finally has conquered the Atlantic ocean, both east and west.

And while they did not completely achieve their objective—Mitchell field—they tied the eastern and western shores in a 34-hour jump from Ireland to the southern tip of Labrador.

Thus the names of von Huenefeld, Koehl and Fitzmaurice will go down in aviation annals with those of Lindbergh, Byrd, Chamberlin, Levine and others who successfully flew from east to west.

Illinois Primary Results

The men and women of Illinois who have grown tired of the tyranny of William Hale Thompson, mayor of Chicago, and Len Small, governor of the state, and Bob Crowe, state's attorney for Cook county, turned thumbs down at Tuesday's primary and completely routed the machine which these men controlled and over which they cracked their individual and collective whips in approved Simon Legree style.

Bob Crowe was defeated for renomination as district attorney, and Len Small was defeated for renomination as governor. Others of the Thompson-Small-Crowe cohorts also were politically beheaded, but they were the small fry.

In the primary the people of Chicago did not get a chance at Big Bill Thompson himself, and it is well for Big Bill that this was the case. In the mood which the primary found the people of Chicago, Cook county and the rest of Illinois, they unquestionably would have turned the boisterous mayor into the streets with the rest of his henchmen.

The law-abiding and law-enforcing people of Chicago and Illinois are to be congratulated for their action Tuesday. Illinois has had enough of the Thompson-Small-Crowe machine. Lawlessness never was more rampant anywhere in the country than it has been and still is in Chicago. Murder, arson, sabotage of every kind flourishes in Chicago.

The Thompson-Small-Crowe handwriting was evident in the election almost a year ago of Fred Smith as United States senator, and that handwriting is one of the principal reasons why Smith was never given a chance in the United States senate to take the oath of office. He was kicked out—and Len Small immediately renamed him to the post.

That sort of thing has brought a most unsavory reputation to Chicago and to the rest of Illinois.

That housecleaning of Tuesday seems to be the beginning of the end for skulduggery in Illinois. May the good work continue until the remaining members of the Thompson-Small-Crowe machine are ousted from office, including Big Bill himself.

With the primary result so fresh in the public mind, may one not look confidently forward now to a cleaning up of the mess of lawlessness in and around Chicago? It is to be hoped so.

Mrs. Wilma Sinclair LeVan

Ohio is fortunate in numbering among its women many who are outstanding as leaders. Chief of among them is Mrs. Wilma Sinclair LeVan, of Steubenville, Republican national committeewoman from Ohio, and a candidate for delegate-at-large to the Republican convention in Kansas City.

Mrs. LeVan's capabilities are known nationally as well as among her hosts of friends in Ohio. She is prominent as a Republican party worker and as a home-maker. She has not permitted her public life to interfere at all with her home life. During the last four years, Mrs. LeVan has given largely of her time and energy within the ranks of the Republican party, and for the purposes of the Republican party. She has accomplished a splendid work.

Selection of the national committeewoman and national committeewoman from Ohio will be made at Kansas City by the members of the Ohio delegation to the convention. And Mrs. LeVan is one of the candidates on Willis' ticket which goes before the April 24 primary. With the Willis supporters sent to the Kansas City convention, Mrs. LeVan will be assured re-election as national committeewoman—an honor which she has earned, and to which she is entitled.

Republican women when they go to the polls on April 24 are capable, of course, of making their own selections. However, they should not overlook the fact that one of their number who has distinguished herself within and for the party in an unimpaired delegate and free to support the very best candidate mentioned at the convention.

Wooden Indians

Where are the painted wooden statues, representing the American god Nicotine, that used to stand on duty in front of every tobacco store?

One of the last of their tribe, "Seneca John," has just been bought by Henry Ford for $100 and given an honored place in his museum of American antiques at Dearborn, Mich.

There hasn't ever much art in those images, but there was an appeal greater than that of modern electric signs. They were striking, picturesque, appropriate, like the painted signs and symbols of hotels in olden days—now replaced by more words. Herein business has taken a backward step.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C. Another argument for the construction of Boulder Dam in the Colorado river is found in a bulletin that has just been published by the Department of Agriculture on the silt problem in the territory that is or may be irrigated by water from the river. Irrigation engineers of the Department have been studying the problem for years, and farmers in the Imperial Valley are deeply interested in it because to remove the finely ground rock and sand that is distributed over their lands costs them on an average of $2 per acre annually.

Samuel Fortier and Harry F. Blaney, the engineers, authors of the bulletin referred to, say that the problem can be solved only through the construction of a high dam such as the proposed Boulder Dam.

Grand Canyon of the Colorado is likened to a "national rock grinding machine" of extraordinary efficiency. Into the gigantic pestle go the rock and sand eroded by the headwaters, says the summary of the report. From it the material emerges, most of it ground as fine as portland cement. In the Colorado and many of its tributaries, the water, loaded with sand, flows a turbulent and rushing course down the steep grades of the canyons. The transported rock and sand are ground to powder, and at the same time the sand-laden water gorges and grinds away the rocky beds of the canyon.

Farmers of southwestern Arizona and southeastern California have found that the silt problem affects both their safety and their prosperity. As to the latter, the silt makes it difficult to raise the very crops that depend on the water for growth, it is pointed out. In irrigating alfalfa, for example, the silt, depositing in a thin film, seals the ground surface. This causes water to stand on the surface for some time and in hot weather often results in scalding the alfalfa.

In furrow-irrigated crops a similar film of silt forms in the furrows and prevents the water from entering the soil. It is sometimes necessary to stop irrigating, break up the film, and try again.

Some silt settles in the irrigation ditches which must be cleaned frequently. Even more serious, the water crops silt on the fields near the openings from the ditches, and there the silt buildings sometimes like a delta or silt bar, interfering with irrigation and necessitating the removal of the silt to the lower reaches of the irrigated tract.

The department engineers give figures showing that Boulder Dam, if built to the height of 550 feet, which they recommend as a minimum, would have a capacity of 26,000,000 acre-feet, or more water than the river has carried in any year since records have been kept. The dam would collect the silty waters of the river, releasing clean water and retaining the silt. In time the reservoir would become increasingly a storage place for silt rather than for water.

Thus there develops another angle to the problem, for it is figured that reservoir of the capacity mentioned would be half full of silt in 100 years. Hence the dam must be very high and should be so constructed that its height can be increased when necessity demands.

"In view of the large quantity of silt to be stored," say the engineers, "earnest consideration should be given to raising rather than lowering the height of the proposed structure, for the principal reason that water can be stored in the upper level of such a reservoir at a cost not exceeding 75 cents per acre-foot."

Q. Do peanuts harm the soil in which they are grown? L. B.

A. Peanuts deplete the fertility of soils if the entire plant and nuts are removed, but if the vines are fed to livestock and the manure returned to the land and a proper rotation practiced, peanuts improve the soil.

Q. Is John Boles, who was Gloria Swanson's leading man in "Loves of Sunya," married? L. H.

A. John Boles is married and has two children.

Q. How generally is the automatic telephone used? D. F. F.

A. About 200 cities in the United States are using or preparing to install the automatic telephone, it is stated, and it is also being used in the larger cities in many foreign countries.

Q. Is it ever permissible to clean the mud off a golf ball during a match? A. S. C.

A. The rules of golf forbid it under penalty of loss of hole in match play or loss of two strokes in medal play, but a local rule or a special tournament rule may permit it when the committee in charge deems it advisable because of the condition of the course.

Q. Who wrote the verse, "Drink to me only with thine eyes," etc.? O. I. L.

A. Ben Johnson wrote the lines to which you refer, but Philostratus in one of his Letters uses very similar phrases: "Drink to me with your eyes alone. And if you will, take the cup to your lips and fill it with kisses, and give it to me."

Q. How old is the Bronx Zoo? A. S. G.

A. The Bronx Zoo—the New York Zoological Park—was formally opened to the public on November 8, 1899. It was founded in 1895.

A. The gross receipts of world series baseball games 1903-1927 inclusive, were $11,653,529.

A. The census of 1923 gave Sweden a population of 6,053,562.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Nothing is so stimulating as a prize fight crowd, even if one doesn't care for the slug-pugged ruggedness and warmth in the smell of heavy black cigars as well as the aromatic overtone of human sweat.

Lighter artificialities of civilization vanish. You feel the instant you join the line tolling its way into Madison Square Garden. You are no longer shy in referring to viscera as guts. You forget your parlor manners, use a toothpick and spit on the floor.

A stomach that bolts easily, seems to clamor for raw meat sandwiches sprinkled with onion or the succulent water encased between thick buns, gooey with mustard. You spurn pop and gingerale through straws and swing it straight from the bottle, "Ging-lug-lug!"

You fall into easy familiarity with some sweated pugilist urly with a twisted nose and undershot jaw who clings to the prison habit of talking out of the side of his mouth. He is your buddy for the evening. There is an inward glow akin to that of back-lapping with a policeman.

Even a pale young ribbon clerk feels a troglodyte. He will talk back and perhaps invite you outside if jostled. It is all the irresistible tug of the primitive, the warp and woof of a strain in all that we do not quite understand.

We are not shocked at flying epithets. Knock the bum cold... What a lousy peacock you turned out to be... Stand on and take your soaking... yellow scandos... Whadda you care about a handful of teeth?... Unhinge his neck... Mush his mug... Flatten his button...

Most of us with emotions a little finer than those of the stable hostler come away from such fiestas with a slight feeling of degradation. Yet for the moment we have been grinded and animated by the sheer animal vigor that swoons the crowd. A great place—the Garden. There you believe Dr. Durant and all the boys who are a little snooty about our civilization may be right.

No amusement offers such picturesque figures as the prize ring. Here is virile stuff from the lumber camps, the city slums, the wheat fields and sometimes the brothels. Their contact has been chiefly with life in the raw. They get theirs with the punch. A pull doesn't mean a thing. And infinitesimally few get anywhere, but in no calling is there such boundless enthusiasm.

In a certain hotel there is nightly at a table for two—a lone woman diner swathed in black. Across from her is a small vase with a single red rose fresh daily. For twenty years, the head waiter tells me, she and her husband occupied the table. Three years ago he was killed in an auto accident. I suppose some might call it awkward, but to me it was rather splendid.

A short story writer just called on the telephone, perplexed about a name for a jovial young man who was a character in his yarn. He had thought of Tom, but didn't like it. I suggested Ted.

I have never known a Ted who was not light-hearted and rather inclined to greet life with a laugh. But a Theodore somehow seems to suggest that starchy name.

These of us who used to raid a leather good to fashion a pair of slits would be interested in the slits now sold. They are highly polished wood with rubber tips, adjustable foot racks and rubberized grips for the hand. They sell for $10 a pair.

The proprietor of a north cafe writes me he has been operating six months and not a waiter has accented a tin. Another one I always enjoyed is about the theatrical producers who insist you can get good seats at the box office.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

Horace, the Latin poet, was a man of wide social sympathies and great common sense. In his writings I find this: "Man is never watchful enough against dangers that threaten him every hour."

You see evidence of this in the everyday history of my colleagues in the United States senate. They sit for hours in the vile air of the senate chamber and for other hours in the vile air of the committee rooms. The amazing thing about it is that they seem utterly oblivious to the dangers of such practices.

Go from the fresh outside air into almost any store, office or factory and the vile atmosphere will almost knock you down. Yet the persons working or living in these places appear to be unconscious of what is happening to them.

Horace is right about it. Man is not watchful of the dangers threatening him all the time.

How regularly do you wash your hands before taking food. Do you handle the bread and other foods without cleansing the fingers of the many impurities they carry?

It is not safe or wise to do this. You should be more watchful against this dangerous practice.

Maybe I'm Wrong

A married man is nothing but a bachelor who was hypnotized.

Vital Statistics. The average American is too honest to steal; Too proud to beg; And too poor to pay cash. That's why we have to give him credit.

Pitiful Cases. The two-faced woman who talked to herself and tried to have the last word.

Wasted Energy. Trying to see the first robin of spring when the cat saw it first.

You're Right. A diplomat is a man who pats you on the back with one hand and goes through your pockets with the other.

Our Own Vaudeville. Guest—What a cute little nest of tabernacles. Hostess—Yes, we raised them ourselves from a multiplication table.

Momentous Moments. When a woman has to wear tight shoes to keep her feet from rattling.

Among the Illiterate. The Boston girl who was so modest that she wouldn't use any improper nouns.

Take It Or Leave It. A social secretary is a person who reminds you of the appointments you've got to break.

Efficiency Experts. The seasick passenger who had the steward bring his breakfast on a tray and throw it overboard for him.

Information Department. The hand brake on your automobile is like a klaxon. Something to be put on in an emergency.

Great American Tragedies. A Scotchman dreamed that he loaned a man ten dollars the other night and now he's going to bed early every evening trying to get it back.

Last Minute Dispatches by Irrational News Bureau. Chicago man loses his sweetheart—Doesn't know whether she's gone back to her husband or met with some other accident.

Police raid artificial limb factory—Claim the proprietor was running a joint.

MEANING OF TRANSFIGURATION

Sunday School Lesson

General Lesson Title—Transfiguration and Service.

Golden Text—He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit: for apart from me ye can do nothing.—John 15:5.

Mark 9, 2-8, 17, 18, 25-29.

2 And after six days Jesus taketh with him Peter and James, and John, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart by themselves: and he was transfigured before them; and his garments became glistening, exceeding white, so as no fuller on earth can whiten them.

4 And there appeared unto them Elijah with Moses; and they were talking with Jesus.

5 And Peter answereth and saith to Jesus, Rabbi, it is good for us to be here: and let us make three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah.

6 For he knew not what to answer; for they became sore afraid.

7 And there came a cloud overshadowing them: and there came a voice out of the cloud, This is my beloved Son: hear ye him.

8 And suddenly looking round about, they saw no one any more, save Jesus only with themselves.

Money Not Everything; Starts College Career

YOUNG people with money are finding that there are better things in life.

Raymond J. Koger, who has piled up a quarter of a million dollars in the twenty-seven years he has been on earth, said he preferred education.

So he is going to quit making money for a while and spend six years at Harvard to get what he would rather have.

Koger lives with his wife and two children at Bridgeport, Conn., where he made his fortune in the last seven years in the investment banking business.

Koger went to work at the age of ten in a grocery store and held various jobs to get experience until 1920. Then he took a $30-a-week position with an investment banker.

Koger, of his boyhood, said: "There were six of us children. My father worked in a textile mill in Housatonic, Mass., making bed spreads. I went to work at the age of ten in a grocery store and stayed there till I was seventeen and then ran away.

"My father came after me at Springfield. He urged me to go home, but I said: 'I will never go home as long as you stay in that little town weaving bedspreads. I won't go back unless you move to a city where I will have a chance.' "So we moved to Bridgeport, where I had several jobs to get as much varied experience as possible. Then I went into the investment banking business."

When money began rolling in Koger met a new class of men. At the clubs and on the golf links he heard others talking of their college days.

He felt that something—he calls it background—was missing from his life.

So Koger sat down at the age of twenty-seven and took an inventory of his life. He decided to quit money making for a few years and go to college. He will enter Harvard next Autumn.

CHEVROLET

USED CARS

"with an OK that counts"

Because we are delivering more new Chevrolets than at any other time in our history, we are offering a number of exceptional values in re-conditioned used cars.

Our used cars are offered under policy originated and approved by the Chevrolet Motor Company, based on an official O. K. tag which is reproduced on this page. Attached to a used car by a Chevrolet dealer it signifies that every vital part of the car has been inspected, properly reconditioned and where worn, replaced by a new part. It assures that the reconditioning has been done by well trained mechanics using proper tools and equipment and that the cars which have been refinished will retain their beauty over a long period of time. The outstanding feature of this plan lies in the fact that it enables anyone to select a used car with absolute confidence as to its satisfactory operation, and the price is absolutely fair and right.

Reasons why you should buy your used car from a Chevrolet dealer

- 1 —Chevrolet dealers have been selected by the Chevrolet Motor Company on the basis of their financial responsibility and dependability.
- 2 —Chevrolet dealers offer used cars on a plan originated and endorsed by the Chevrolet Motor Company.
- 3 —Chevrolet dealers have the necessary modern tools and equipment to properly recondition used cars.
- 4 —Chevrolet dealers desire the good will of used car buyers the same as they enjoy from new car buyers.

JOY REIGNS SUPREME IN DUBLIN OVER OCEAN FLIGHT

GERMAN-IRISH CREW'S PATH IN THEIR WESTWARD HOP ACROSS NORTH ATLANTIC

The trail across the ocean that has claimed so many victims and the path of the latest daring trio of flyers who set out from Baldonnel, Ireland's airport, near Dublin, with Mitchell Field, New York, as their goal.

IRISH PILOT'S WIFE HAPPY AS BREMEN LANDS

News Arrives After Hope Had Been Abandoned.

COSGRAVE PROUD

Free State Elated Over Hop From Baldonnel.

DUBLIN, April 14.—Joy reigned supreme in this city today when it was learned that Commandant James E. Fitzmaurice, chief of the Irish Free State airforce, and his two German companions had landed safely in America after they had almost been given up for lost.

SEND GREETINGS TO HUENEFELD

BERLIN, April 14.—The following message of congratulation today was sent Baron von Huenefeld by his brother in Berlin through International News Service:

"Dear old fellow: The night was bad, but we are all the happier over the safety of yourself and your companions. We thank God. All of us are proud that you have crossed the ocean after all. Love and greetings and heartfelt congratulations from your brother and your mother."

The Irish flier's wife was radiant with happiness after having gone through almost two days of wracking uncertainty.

"I am the happiest and proudest woman in the world," she said. "I was confident all the time that he would get there safely but oh—that waiting. President Cosgrave also received the good news with proud elation. 'We are very proud that the first successful attempt to cross the Atlantic ocean westward by air should have been made from the Baldonnel airfield and that the commandant of the Irish Free State airforce should have been associated with this great enterprise,' he said.

Miss Hall Wins

ing the subject, "The Development of the Constitution" declared the constitution of the United States to be "the oldest document of government in the world." "Under this constitution, the United States has become the mightiest nation in the world," he asserted. Many other nations had modeled their constitutions after that of the United States, he said.

C. Richard Ginder, Wellsville representative, also using the subject "The Development of the Constitution," traced the ratification of the constitution by the states following its adoption by the framers. "It has attracted millions to our shores and we, as Americans, should feel proud to live in a country governed by such a law," he asserted.

Speaking on "The Present Significance of the Constitution," Michael Rubino, Lisbon orator, declared the fundamental law had withstood through even generations, during which time the United States "has grown from a seaport colonization to the mightiest power in the world." "America, the utopia of all nations, rules in splendor and glory with 141 years of successful operation under the constitution."

Decision of Judges. Long applause greeted Attorney Vody's announcement of the winners. The four contestants were called to the auditorium stage before the decision was announced.

Miss Hall was the choice of two of the three judges for the first place honor, while the other judge picked Lloyd Lange for the honor. Michael Rubino was the unanimous choice of the three for second place. Lange, who was placed third by one judge and fourth by another, was given the third place honor because of one first choice vote. Ginder received two votes for the fourth place position and one vote for third place.

East Liverpool is the first of the five districts taking part in the Canton tournament to hold its contest. The other districts contests, sponsored by The Canton Repository, Marion Star, Steubenville Herald-Star and Salem News, will be held next week.

Winner of the Canton contest will go to Troy, N. Y., May 11 to take part in an eastern sectional tournament. Victor in that event will be sent to Washington, D. C., for the national finals. This will be followed by an international contest in which seven other countries will participate. A trip to Europe will be given the eight contestants in the international contest.

The East Liverpool Review extends its thanks to the participants, principals, teachers and other officials of the four schools and to all others who assisted in the success of the district contest.

BERLIN CHEERS FIRST WESTERN ATLANTIC HOP

Hindenburg Sends Congratulations to Koehl and Pals.

GREAT TRIUMPH

Hailed as Enhancing German Prestige and Courage.

BERLIN, April 14.—Official Germany and leaders throughout the country were overjoyed today at the achievement of Capt. Koehl, Baron von Huenefeld and Commander Fitzmaurice in spanning the North Atlantic ocean in a westward flight for the first time.

President Hindenburg telegraphed to Koehl congratulating him upon the success of his venture.

"Heartiest congratulations to the daring ocean fliers on their great success—Von Hindenburg, reichstag president."

Transportation Minister Koch wired Professor Junkers, designer and manufacturer of the Bremen—"The great flying triumph which Koehl achieved was made possible only through the excellence of the airplane and motor you built. Congratulations to your fellow workers."

Chancellor Marx also congratulated Koehl in the following cable: "Heartiest congratulations to the first European fliers to succeed in flying across the ocean from east to west. Our joy is all the greater because this triumph was due to German technique and German daring. Through them Germany transmits to the American people her greetings as an expression of spiritual union and friendship."

Other leaders throughout the country hailed the flight as enhancing German prestige, courage and mechanical excellence.

INDICT 50 MEN IN MINE ZONE

Counts Returned by Belmont County Grand Jury.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., March 14.—Eastern Ohio's bitterly fought coal controversy made its appearance in Belmont county common pleas court today when indictments were returned against nearly 50 miners by the county grand jury.

Rioting, assault to kill and threatening are charged in the indictments. Prosecutor P. V. Waddell said today that the grand jury had acted on the plan of selecting and indicting the leaders in various alleged riotings, rather than returning a blanket indictment against all who participated.

A blow is struck at picketing by the indictment of eight men for "threatening." The jury taking the view that intimidation of non-union men, working the mines, constitutes threatening.

Famous Equestrienne Dies. BEDFORD, O., April 14.—Funeral services for Mrs. Emily Melillo, 72, famous equestrienne, who spent most of her life in a circus ring, playing in America, Europe and Africa, were to be held here today. Mrs. Melillo retired from circus life more than seven years ago.

KOEHL'S WIFE SENDS MESSAGE

BERLIN, April 14.—Mrs. Koehl asked International News Service to send the following message written in the Bavarian dialect to her husband:

"Tausend gruesse tapfres maennle dein Peter." Translated the message reads "A thousand greetings, dear husband. Your Peter." "Maennle" is an endearing term in the Bavarian dialect.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, April 14.—Prices of the speculative industrial and motor stocks slumped sharply at the beginning of trading today as the result of the crowding of the market with profit-taking sales from various points. General Motors led the downward movement, selling down to 193 in the first group of sales, for a loss of about 5 1/2 points from Friday's close. American Linseed dropped about 10 points and various industrials and specialties lost 2 to 4 points in the first period.

Failure of the bulls in the final period yesterday to push "Big Motors" over the 200 mark in an enormous turnover of stock took some of the speculative enthusiasm from the "small fry" traders.

Buying support for General Motors, United States Steel and other market favorites was sufficient to prompt the downward movement and to bring about a good rally in the stocks selling more than the early recovery of one to two points were scored by other motor, steel and copper shares. Tobacco Products was at the head of a strong upward movement in the new specialties, and the move in Schulte Retail Stores.

gained headway to the accompaniment of reports of a contemplated increase in the dividend to 4 1/2 per cent, with extras.

NATION'S EYES FOCUSED ON BREMEN'S FEAT

Aviation Enthusiasts Rejoice That Fliers are Safe.

PLAN RECEPTION

August J. Koehl, Uncle of Pilot, is Happy.

NEW YORK, April 14.—National interest was focused today upon the spectacular finish of the trans-Atlantic flight of the German monoplane Bremen. There was nation-wide rejoicing over the safe termination of the daring flight, even if the airmen were not able to maintain their course to their planned destination Mitchell field.

Not only aviation enthusiasts, but leaders in other branches of public activities, expressed elation that Capt. Hermann Koehl and his two companions were safe. After darkness had fallen last night and the numerous reports of the Bremen being sighted had proved groundless, hap had begun to dwindle rapidly.

A great reception is being planned for Capt. Koehl, Baron von Huenefeld and Commander James E. Fitzmaurice, of the Free State Air forces, when they reach this city. They will be feted and acclaimed with honors due the first aviators who were able to negotiate the westbound voyage over the Atlantic in the face of great peril.

"Thank God," Uncle Exclaims. Probably the happiest man in New York today was August J. Koehl, uncle of pilot Hermann Koehl, of the Bremen. Prof. Koehl went to Mitchell field where he was the guest of the mayor's welcoming committee while awaiting the Bremen. Pacing up and down the operations office, Prof. Koehl eagerly scanned every bulletin and devoured every rumor and report.

When the news was flashed that the Bremen had landed on Greenely Island, off the Labrador coast, and that the airmen were safe, he exclaimed: "Thank God!"

Prof. Koehl was then driven to his home in this city in the official motor car of the mayor's welcoming committee, where he issued the following statement:

"Capt. Koehl's greatest mission has been fulfilled. I never lost hope for a moment. The hearts of Germany, United States and Ireland have been blended. I always knew the brave men would succeed. We will have a real reception when Capt. Koehl and his courageous companions come to my home."

New York to Welcome Airmen. It is expected that representatives of the German embassy, the Free State legation and the German and Free State consulates in this city will join with the mayor's official committee in welcoming the fliers when they come to New York.

German societies are planning numerous fetes. Before leaving Baldonnel airbase Baron von Huenefeld said he wanted to return to Germany as quickly as possible so it is likely his stay here will be brief.

Washington is Thrilled. WASHINGTON, April 14.—The capital was thrilled today over the safe landing of the German and Irish aviators on the little island of Greenely, off the coast of Labrador, and hailed their feat of being the first to cross the North Atlantic on a westward flight, where so many have failed, as a memorable one.

It was considered unfeasible to send a rescue plane from the United States to take the two Germans and the Irishman off the almost barren island.

Brig. Gen. J. E. Fechet, chief of the army air corps, told International News Service today that in his opinion the aviators would have to be rescued by a vessel.

Their rescue will be left to the Canadian government, Fechet said. The news of the aviators' safety was received at the German embassy and Irish legation with joy. Hope had never been abandoned but the relief was evident.

KOEHL WILL BE 40 ON SUNDAY

BERLIN, April 14.—Tomorrow is Captain Hermann Koehl's birthday.

He will be 40 years old. His friends here hoped he could be taken to civilization before then so that he could celebrate his birthday and his wonderful achievement at the same time in a fitting manner.

Bremen Plans Hop

Flight during which it battled against sleet, snow, rain and headwinds.

Captain Koehl, Commander Fitzmaurice and Baron von Huenefeld are safe but they are marooned on an ice-bound island.

The Bremen was forced to alight because it ran out of fuel. In landing the plane's propeller was smashed and its landing gear was damaged.

The Canadian government has ordered the ice-breaker Montcalm to proceed to Greenely Island to rescue the fliers. The Montcalm is now on its way.

Greenely Island is in the straits of Belle Isle which are frozen over. News of the fliers' landing was brought to Point Amour, Labrador, by dog sled where there is a wireless station.

An attempt will be made to reach the fliers by airplane, Mitchell field, N. Y., officials announced today. The flight will be made in a sister plane to the Bremen, the only other Junkers plane in the United States. It will be piloted by Fred Melchior and Franz Hertha Junkers, daughter of the foremost plane manufacturer in Germany.

The straits of Belle Isle separate Labrador from Newfoundland. The surrounding country is bleak. There is a fishing station on Greenely Island which is plentifully supplied with food.

Canadian government officials are averse to sending a plane to Greenely. They say the attempt would be too hazardous and a landing might be impossible.

Cancel New York Relief Flight.

CURTIS FIELD, N. Y., April 14.—Fraulien Herta Junkers, daughter of Dr. Hugo Junkers, manufacturer of the trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen and representative of her father's company in America, announced shortly after 9 o'clock this morning that tentative plans to send relief to the Bremen from here by air had been definitely cancelled because of unfavorable weather conditions.

The flight to the spot where the Bremen was landed when its gasoline supply became exhausted is approximately 1,100 miles. A large portion of this distance is over desolate territory still in the grip of snow and ice.

ST. JOHNS, NEWFOUNDLAND, April 14.—News from New York that the Juners plane, which was to have hopped off for Greenely Island, was detained by bad weather, indicated today that an ice-breaking ship may reach the stranded Bremen fliers before an airplane.

Job Brothers, of St. Johns, who have a fishing station on Greenely Island, have supplies of gasoline at Porteau, 18 miles east of Greenely Island, in charge of a lighthousekeeper, also additional supplies at Natashouan, 300 miles west of Greenely.

Sea captains believe it would be comparatively easy for a ship to reach Greenely Island through the eastern passage.

Icebreaker on Way to Island. MONTREAL, April 14.—The Canadian government icebreaker Montcalm is proceeding today under forced steam for Point Amour, Labrador, to pick up the three trans-Atlantic fliers who were forced down at noon yesterday on barren Greenely Island, seven miles off the mainland, according to a radio received here from the captain of the vessel.

The message from Captain Mercer of the Montcalm stated that the Montcalm was now in the Gulf of the St. Lawrence, between East Point and Cape Ray.

Captain Mercer stated that unless ice conditions he will reach Point Amour by tonight, and will have the fliers ashore in Canada by late tomorrow or early Monday morning.

Spend Night in Sleep. According to the latest word received here today the Bremen, the first plane to travel successfully in a westerly direction over the treacherous north Atlantic, is being dismantled and prepared for shipment aboard the Montcalm.

The three fliers, Captain Hermann Koehl, Commandant James E. Fitzmaurice and Baron von Huenefeld, spent the night in quiet sleep, radio dispatches stated. They did not seem in the least bit worn by their experiences, and appeared to take their hazardous flight and its precipitous ending as a matter of course.

Dispatches were received here from Point Amour, Labrador, to which point they had been carried by dog sled from Greenely Island, the barren piece of rock and ice where the fliers landed.

Many relatives of the dead had gone to the theatre. They witnessed the fire and some are believed to have lost their lives trying to rescue the unfortunate.

Dale Allen, son of a merchant, was blown across the street from the force of the explosion.

A RAILROAD built by American, British, German and French engineers to connect the Persian Gulf with the Caspian Sea will cost $80,000,000. And, most interesting, howling locomotives will run through territory believed to have been the original Garden of Eden. How that would delight little Cain and Abel, and amaze Eve and the snake, if they could see it.

OCEAN PLANE DAMAGED, BUT FLIERS ARE O. K.

Canadian Government Plans to Rescue Bremen Crew.

MEN ICE-BOUND

Head Winds Exhaust Junkers Craft's Fuel Supply.

HALIFAX, N. S., April 14.—The trans-Atlantic plane Bremen is slightly damaged, and its three occupants, Captain Hermann Koehl, Baron Ehrhard von Huenefeld and Commander James Fitzmaurice, have escaped without injury, according to the latest word received here this morning.

The government is making every effort to find some means to reach the fliers and bring them south from their icy isolation on Greenely Island, off Labrador. However, the straits of Belle Isle are still jammed with ice, according to official dispatches.

The three airmen are being cared for by the lighthouse keeper on the island, it was stated, and they want for no necessity, although their surroundings naturally afford only the barest of comfort. It is believed here that the fliers were following the great circle course, summer route of steamers, but that they encountered head winds which exhausted their fuel supply and forced them to land on the ice-bound isle.

Plans have been made to increase seating capacity for the Sunday evening services.

The choir will sing, "Come Unto Me," arranged from F. Thome by Judson. In addition, two guest soloists will contribute selections. George B. Imbrie and Miss Nova Clendenning. Miss Clendenning will sing "Praises to Dad," accompanied by Miss Martha McClelland.

During the past five weeks, the pastor announced, there have been 11 confessions at the regular services in the church and baptismal services for them will be held Sunday evening.

A special feature of the morning meeting will be vocal selections by Miss Ruth Henthorne, of this city, a student at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music.

The pastor will deliver a special message on "The Man Who Forgots," appropriate to the communion service. Rev. Young invites the public to the services.

St. Louis Hails Dan Howley As American League Miracle Man

Brownies Capture 3 in Row

Former Tiger Stars Aid in Detroit's Downfall.

By Les Conklin.
NEW YORK, April 14.—Dan Howley, starting his second season as manager of the Browns, is being hailed in St. Louis as the "miracle man" destined to lead the Browns out of the American League wilderness. The genial Howley has startled the baseball world by guiding his new team to three successive victories over the Detroit Tigers.

The three defeats have been hard for Detroit fans to swallow because they were chiefly due to the playing of former Tiger stars, Manush, Blue and Manion. Yesterday Manion tied the score with a home run in the ninth and set the stage for the fiasco in the eleventh when Howley lost his own game on a wild pitch, 4 to 3.

The Tigers' companions in misfortune include the Athletics, who received a terrific jolt inflicted by the New York Yankees. The two teams made six home runs in yesterday's game, which New York won by an 8 to 7 margin.

Todd of the Red Sox hit two homers but the Red Sox lost to Washington, 6 to 4. Splendid pitching by Arthur Nehf and Dazzy Vance featured the National League games. Nehf, a world series hero six or seven years ago, staged a comeback with the Cubs by blanking the Reds, 2 to 0.

Vance held the Phillies to five hits as Brooklyn won 6 to 1.

The New York Giants tied the St. Louis Cardinals for first place in the senior circuit by plastering the Boston Braves again, 7 to 3. Andy Cohen, New York's favorite new idol, again outshone Rogers Hornsby.

The Cleveland-Chicago game was halted by rain in the sixth with the score 1-1. Rain held the Pirates and Cardinals idle.

Lomski Meets Difficulties In Title Quest

Coast Heavy Finds Luck Breaking Against Him.

NEW YORK, April 14.—That crude fellow from the west, Leo Lomski, simply will have to be taken aside and reasoned with in a nice fatherly way. He still thinks that fighters go into the ring to fight. He should know better by this time but apparently Leo is one of those simple models who are a bit slow to grasp the new idea. Meantime, he is getting approximately nowhere in his quest of a championship title.

I don't say that Leo is deserving of one, at that. As a matter of fact, I rather clearly remember him being buffeted about in an extremely light heavyweight champion, Tommy Loughran, and it is my idea that Thomas can repeat the performance at any given, or taken, moment. The point is that there seems to be so little chance of the performance being repeated. Lomski has been coddled and embraced out of another chance by the affectionate character of the men he has been meeting.

Winning Favor.
It all began when he dropped Loughran twice in the first round of their title meeting. Every one knew that Thomas was a hard man to hit and that, better still, he was a hard man to hurt. Enough! The living of Lomski commenced at that moment.

It is no reflection on Loughran that his was the first and warmest embrace. He had been violently upon the chin and didn't know what it was all about for the next four rounds. Instinct alone prompted him to hold as long as he felt himself in trouble. Later, he punched Lomski all over the ring. But it was distance punching. Any time Leo became intimate, the champion just naturally tied him up like a package.

Leo, of course, likes to get in there before he does his swinging because his arms are short and clunky. It was simply his tough luck that the current champion had too much horse sense to play the game his way.

Luck too, was against him in the McTigue match. He had been more or less forced to keep away from a veteran who had nothing except knowledge of how to avoid punishment. McTigue had been brash enough when he was in the midst of his fling a year ago but that knockout by Mickey Walker had convinced him it was all over and had sent him back to that old style of his. This consists largely of turning his back to opponent and giving him a large, unresilient shoulder blade for a target.

In consequence, the Lomski-McTigue affair was a terrible thing and the addicts, who had hammered over Leo's frolics with Yale Okum and hundred kindred souls and his knockdowns of Loughran, hastily lost much interest in the young man.

Retreating Fight.
His next meeting was with Joe Sekyra. From all accounts, Joseph, too,

Webber Wins Three-Cushion Billiard Race

Plans Announced for Tournament in September.

Three cushion tournament for city championship honors which has been under way at the Club Billiard parlors closed last night with Willard Webber carrying off the title.

Webber finished in front by a full two-runs margin over Ernie Crawford, second place winner.

Coincident with the close of the present tournament, the management of the Club parlors announced that plans are already being considered for a big district cue meet beginning September 1, with a prize list aggregating in the neighborhood of $500.

In the final match of the season last night Crawford lost to White, 25 to 23, but the defeat did not affect his second place rating.

If He Dreams of Victory, He Wins; If He Doesn't, He Loses

That's the Way Clarence DeMar, Boston Marathon Star, Knows How He's Going to Finish.

BOSTON, April 14.—Dreaming his marathon victories on the night before each of his races, Clarence DeMar, greatest long distance running star in the world today, gains the confidence that returns him a winner in race after race over the 25 mile distance.

Clarence usually has a dream the night before each of his important races and in the dreams, he is visualized in the position that will be his in the race of the morrow.

DeMar has won the Boston Marathon, the classic of distance running, on five occasions, his first and second victories bridging a space of ten years.

"In 1910, I slept a dreamless sleep before the B. A. A. marathon, I finished second," said DeMar.

"In 1911 I dreamed I won and finished first."

"In 1917, I did not dream and finished third."

"In 1922, 1924, 1927, I dreamed that I would be first again, and I was."

A Friend's Dream.
"In 1923, I did not dream," continued the slender, smiling DeMar, "but a friend of mine dreamed I would win and I did."

DeMar, at the age of forty, when most athletes are ending their days in blissful content looking over trophies, is still running. He travels over ten miles a day to and from work.

Recently, he won a foot race from Providence to Boston, setting a new record for the 44 mile distance.

DeMar is ready right now for the Boston Marathon on April 19th. He expects to win the classic for the sixth time and then realize the ambition of a lifetime by winning the Olympic distance for Uncle Sam.

The veteran plodder has already competed in two Olympics and in both, his position has been somewhat of a disappointment to him. In the Stockholm games in 1912, Clarence was twelfth. Twelve years later at Paris, he was defeated by Albin Streenross, of Finland.

Later DeMar ran the Finn into the ground on the hills of the long Ashland to Boston grind.

Training Methods.
The methods of training employed by DeMar are radically different from those of all other athletes. He has never smoked tobacco in any form. He does not touch any kind of intoxicant, never has.

This ban on intoxicants goes even farther and bars coffee and tea from his daily menu. Milk and cold water are the sole liquids in which DeMar indulges.

He eats meat only once a day, believing that there are other foods more conducive for muscle building and speed.

His practice work for the past decade of years has consisted of running and from work every day, in his ordinary working clothes. DeMar is a printer by trade. He lives in Melrose and works in Boston, about six miles away.

Every morning and every evening, the lanky straw thatched figure of the Melrose Legionaire plods its way through the outskirts and the centers of the towns between Melrose and Boston. Traffic officers on the way wave him a greeting as they hold the traffic long enough for the running DeMar to pass their posts.

DeMar was born in Maderia, Ohio, in 1888. His folks moved to New England and there Clarence began his plodding. He served a farm apprenticeship, after the death of his father, learned the printing trade, and later spent two years at the University of Vermont.

A Long Record.
For years now he has been a "marathoner" and a printer, reserving only enough of his time for his two hobbies, studying and teaching. DeMar has acquired a Bachelor of Arts degree from Harvard university as a result of continued home study under the University Extension plan.

Every Sunday, he teaches religion at the Melrose Baptist church. The boys will do anything for Clarence and DeMar will go anything for the boys.

The record of DeMar's major triumph in the period of 1910-1928 follows:

1910—Boston Marathon—Second.
Brooklyn Fair Marathon—Third.
1911—Boston Marathon—First.
Brooklyn Fair Marathon—Third.
1912—Olympic Marathon at Stockholm—Twelfth.

1917—Boston Marathon—Third.
Brooklyn Fair Marathon—First.
1922—Boston Marathon—First.
1923—Boston Marathon—First.
1924—Baltimore Marathon—Third.
Boston Marathon—Third.
Olympic Marathon at Paris—Third.
1925—Boston Marathon—Second.
1926—Boston Marathon—Third.
Baltimore Marathon—Third.
Sequoiacentennial Marathon at Philadelphia—First.

New York to Rochester—1927—Boston Marathon—First.
Baltimore Marathon—First.
1928—Providence to Boston Race—First.

HE annual home-run race is on in full swing following a swat session that produced six circuit clouts in the New York-Philadelphia game alone yesterday. The Yanks outslugged the Macks to win, 8 to 7, with Buster Gehrig getting his first four-base drive of the season and a start on his friendly enemy, Babe Ruth.

STEVE O'MALLEY, of Bellaire, who fought Cuddy DeMarco here several weeks ago, is matched with Teddy Welch of McKeesport for eight rounds in Washington, Pa., next Monday.

SPORT NEWS AND VIEWS

By the Sports Editor.

THE greatest indoor boxing season that East Liverpool followers of the sport have ever been accorded is nearing an end and among conclusions of various kinds one is outstanding that boxing in East Liverpool, properly conducted, can not miss being a successful venture.

There is little question that the sport has been conducted at the Eagles in a manner that leaves nothing to be desired. Sportsmanship and clean play have been stressed in every act and the major portion of the credit for the season's boxing successes must be laid at the foot of Matchmaker Tom McDonough.

McDonough has been the impetus behind every fight on the card and every fight has been arranged with the thought of providing the best possible for the entertainment of glove followers.

That he succeeded to an extent probably beyond his own expectations is seen in packed houses, not now and then, but virtually for every card. Given a space with larger seating capacity, larger revenue and, consequently, more of the wherewithal to purchase better fighters, local promoters would be able to keep pace with other cities in the fight game.

Three cushion tournament for city championship honors which has been under way at the Club Billiard parlors closed last night with Willard Webber carrying off the title.

Webber finished in front by a full two-runs margin over Ernie Crawford, second place winner.

Coincident with the close of the present tournament, the management of the Club parlors announced that plans are already being considered for a big district cue meet beginning September 1, with a prize list aggregating in the neighborhood of $500.

In the final match of the season last night Crawford lost to White, 25 to 23, but the defeat did not affect his second place rating.

'Kid' Olympic Games Banned By A. A. Union

Rule They Must be Held Under Some Other Name.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, April 14.—There will not be two sets of Olympic games this year, it was learned today, and I can't help but say that I am astonished. But you don't mean to say you hadn't heard of the Junior Olympics? Neither had I. This, however, has had no influence on the fact that the Amateur Athletic Union thinks that a lot of boys have been guilty of plagiarism and that the conflict in identities between the two simply cannot be tolerated.

The original idea of the Junior Olympics, it seems, was to hold a series of sectional track meets for boys under the age limit of the real Olympics, with the place winners to compete in a final set of games at Atlantic City some time in June. The winners of these final events then were to be sent pre-paid to Amsterdam to see the big international meeting.

The writer always fails to notice that the befuddled guest has chosen the wrong knife for the peas. The A. A. U., being a discerning body of men, has realized immediately that the boys can't call it meet the Junior Olympics because this would result in confusion.

Those, for example, who wished to visit Amsterdam for the real Olympics might wind up in Atlantic City if they didn't wind themselves very closely and of course, a dollar contributed to the Olympic fund might get very careless, too.

So, I am informed, the A. A. U., has decided there is nothing for it but to put its foot down on the situation. At that, the action contemplated may be an improvement on A. A. U. custom, which calls not for the foot to be put down but in. Anyhow, the Junior Olympics must be held under another name.

Personally, I think the Amateur Athletic Union is entirely too concerned about discouraging any kind of competition with the international games in Europe. It didn't want the Herr Doktor to race here this year because it was "an Olympic year and these faces might take the edge off the games in Amsterdam."

The writer doesn't happen to agree with this version but that is the A. A. U.'s business. Meddling in the affairs of young boys because it fears they might hurt this game, however, is neither the A. A. U.'s business nor a boon to its credit.

had taken the matter of Lomski's messy ways to heart. For he is said to have fought a retreating fight most of the way, allowing Lomski to take the play away from him and holding earnestly when he might better have employed his time in hitting. Sekyra's straight punching style gave him a better natural advantage over Leo in his fight but the returns said that the Dayton entry declined to profit by the fact. It apparently wasn't much of a fight on that account.

As a result, Lomski is talking of entering the heavyweight division. He is doing so, not because he feels he can't beat Loughran but because he doubts that he will fight him at all. Those uninteresting fights with McTigue and Sekyra have hurt Leo as a drawing card so much that another Loughran-Lomski match has become somewhat impractical from the standpoint of the box office. Incidentally, there may be several other standpoints but I know you will forgive me if I fail to recall just what they are.

Stolen Idols

A Romance of the Sea
By Frank L. Packard.

"Miss Lyle," he said gravely, "I—what I am going to ask from you now is, whether you believe it or not, for your own good. Before you leave the Alita you must give me that ivory god you've got."
She drew sharply back from him. Her hands clenched tightly at her sides.
"Must?" she challenged through tight lips.
"Yes," he said. "I am afraid I have put it bluntly; that I have startled you."
"Oh, no—far from that!" she retorted fiercely. "I have expected this all along. It is what you have been after all the time—the reason why you killed my brother. My only wonder has been that since the night on the beach when you asked for it, you have said nothing about it again until now. You perhaps had your reasons, but my answer is the same now as then. You shall not have it! There is no power on earth that can make me give it to you!"

"I remember our answer, and the reason you gave—that it would help to hang me," he said slowly; "but I had hoped that the respect with which you have been treated during the days you have been aboard here would have caused you to relent a little, and that you would have come to see things in a somewhat different light. For instance, you thought it was Richardson who tried to prevent my escape from Aoru, and who was trying to rescue you in that fight at the cliff. You have talked a great deal with Kafan since then, and surely you must realize now that, instead of Richardson, it was the five Chinamen I told you about on the beach that night of the shipwreck who were after us, and after you specifically, on account of that ivory god. Kafan was on the Monotah, and he knew something of what happened there. He was in the boat with the Chinamen and myself on the way in from the ship, and it was Kafan whom I sent to find the Alita. He has told you all these things."

"Oh yes," she answered unyieldingly. "Kafan has told me that—and a great deal more. He has made you out a veritable hero, and, according to him, you have risked your life several times for me; but Kafan is your mouth-piece, and I can hardly be expected to credit any tales that your men repeat to me like parrots, when I know well enough they emanate from you! I have never seen any of these mythical Chinamen. I did not see them outside my stateroom door when my brother was murdered—I saw only you. I did not see them when all of us, the survivors, in broad daylight, reached Aoru."

"I am sorry," he said simply. "Nevertheless it is only the truth. Your life wouldn't be worth a farthing with that idol in your possession if they could get their hands on you. That is why you were—shall we say?—kidnapped in Aoru. That is another reason why you are not going to Singapore where you would be in danger; and, finally, that is one of the reasons why you are going to transfer it to me before you go ashore here at Kalawa. In other words—he smiled faintly—"for your own sake you are going to fade out of the picture."

She studied him for a moment, her head high, her hands still clenched.
"Am I, indeed?" she exclaimed jolly. "We will see! For that matter, how do you know I have still got the idol? I could have disposed of it in Aoru, or easily destroyed it in the ten days I have had since then."

Bob Kingsley shook his head.
"The only person you could have given it to in Aoru was Richardson," he said quietly. "But you were ill that morning, and, according to what Kafan learned through scouting around the company, Richardson, on his return to Aoru, immediately went off to the scene of the wreck. I doubt if you spoke a single word to Richardson. You have already told me why plainly enough. God help me, I know only too well your feelings toward me, and I know that you meant literally what you said. The last thing you would do would be to destroy it if you believed, as you do believe, that in any way it would help to bring me to account for your brother's murder. And, besides, what you said a moment ago—that no power on earth would make you give it to me—is practically an admission that you still have it."

"Yes?" She lifted her shoulders defiantly. "Well, I might as well admit it fully, then! But what are you going to do about it?"

"If you refuse to give it to me," he replied, "I shall—"
"I do refuse!" she broke in violently. "I have already told you so. Can I make it any plainer? I will not—do you understand?—I will not give it to you!"

"Then, while you remain up here on deck with me," he said, "I will first of all send below and have the cabin thoroughly searched."

For a moment she was silent, and as her eyes swept his face the blue of them seemed to darken as though in sudden apprehension. Her voice was low, with a little tremor in it, when she spoke again:

"And if you do not find it there?"
The answer was one he was not anxious to put into words. Strange that where he would gladly have given his all to inspire faith and trust, he must ever and always inspire but a deeper hate and loathing, and appear the more deplorable in her eyes! It was as though fate laughed and jeered and mocked at him.

"I fear the answer is obvious, isn't it?" he said. "If the ivory god is not in the cabin, it must be on your person; it could not be anywhere else, and there would be nowhere else to search."

The color flamed into her cheeks.
"Me!" she cried out. "You—you and your men would dare do that?" She shrank away from him, her hands clasped wildly at her breast. "You—you would—search me?"

"Yes—if you force me to do so," he answered steadily. "There is no other way. No matter how, and no matter why now, since you will not credit my reasons in any case, I am going to have that ivory god. But you need have no fear of what is evidently in your mind. If you must be searched, at least you will not be subjected to any more indignity than can be helped. I shall send ashore for a couple of native women."

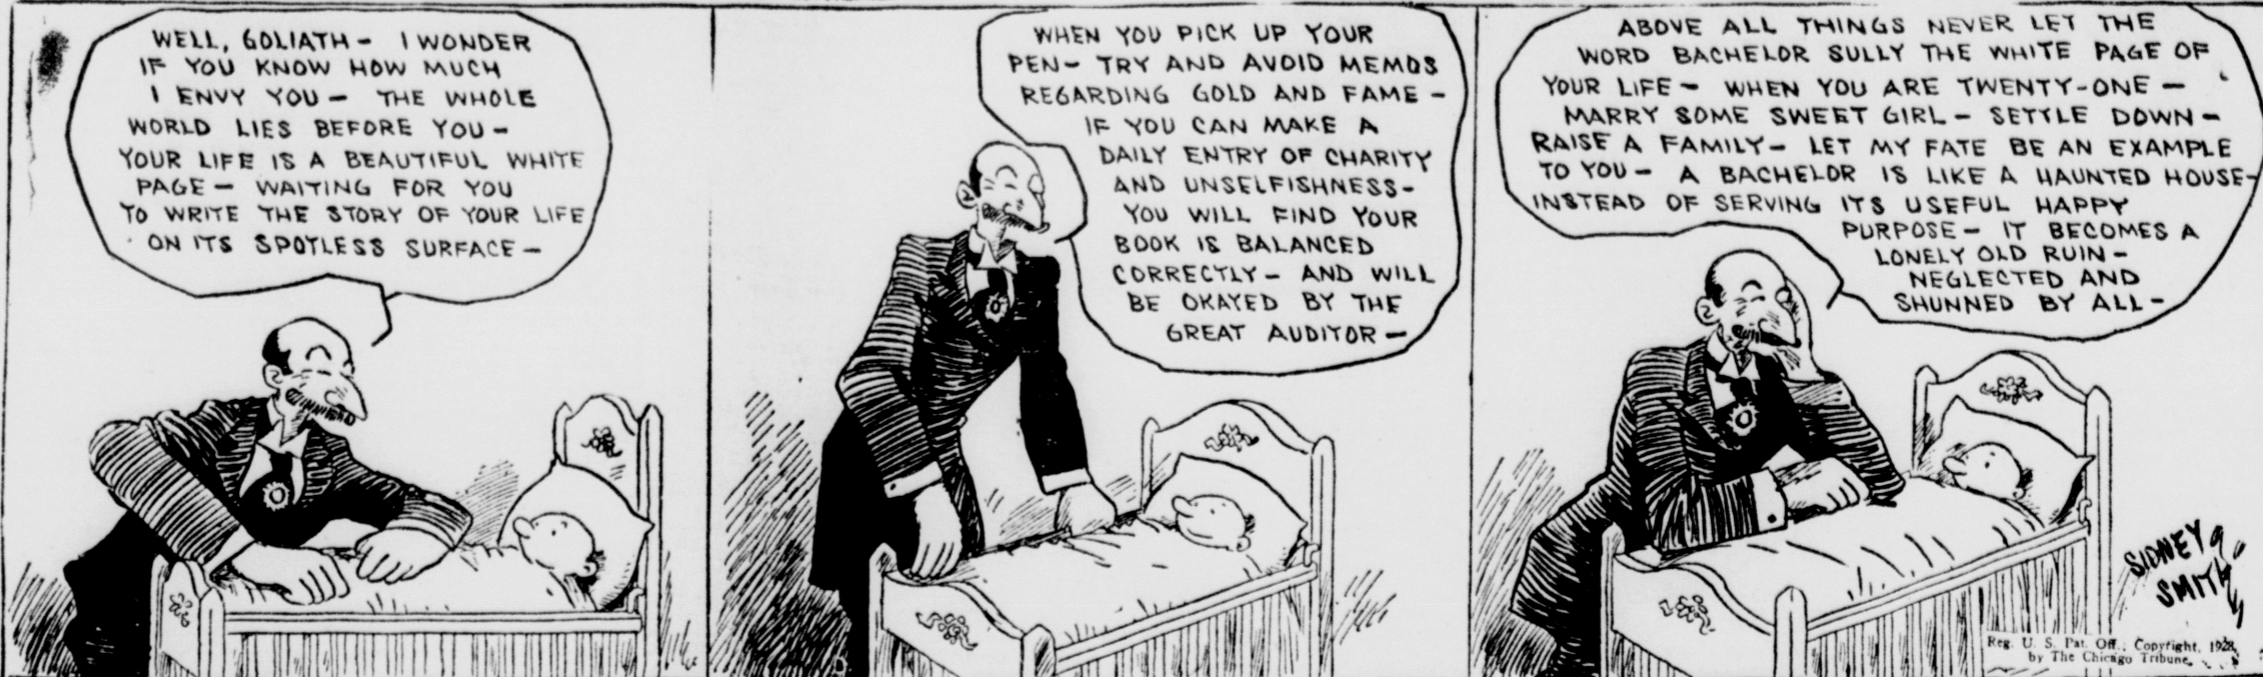

Instinctively, it seemed, her eyes went to the shoreline, and for a full minute she was silent—while the color, receding from her face, left it whiter than before. "I did not give you credit for so much consideration," she said at last in a strained voice. "But even if the search is to be made by those of my own sex, I see that I am beaten—and yet not wholly beaten. This ivory god"—she took it suddenly from the bodice of her dress—"is obviously, for some reason or other, of such enormous value to you that it has made of you—a murderer. I do not know what the secret of its worth is, what it represents that would cause you to sell your soul for its possession; but it is of enormous value to me, too—for quite another reason. You know what that reason is. But since I may not keep it"—she laughed suddenly, a little hysterically—"then you shall not have it, either—and so—"

CHAPTER 36.

With a sharp cry, Bob Kingsley sprang forward, and caught her arm as she raised it swiftly above her head. But the little white god had already left her hand. He swung around and watched it now as it spun through the sunlight, watched it with a sort of angry and amazed and helpless fascination. He had deflected her aim. It was true, but it still seemed almost a certainty that Chen-shu's "Heaven-made" image would go overboard. No! It had farther to travel now than she had expected, and it was not quite high enough. It struck sharply against the taffrail now, and dropped down on the deck. He leaped aft along the deck after it in an instant, and, stooping down, picked it up—and then he stood there, like a man dazed, staring at the idol in his hand. Ivory is a fragile thing, and the blow against the taffrail had cracked the little god most curiously. Or was it a crack? The folded hands of the idol seemed to be protruding from the body by the almost imperceptible fraction of an inch. He picked at the tiny fracture with his thumbnail. It wasn't a crack! The hands were loosening. The idol wasn't solid—it was hollow. The folded hands overlapped the actual jointure beneath; and around the wrists, which were the only places where the pieces came openly together, a number of concentric lines had been so ingeniously and delicately carved to represent flowing sleeves that, under ordinary conditions, no suspicion could ever be aroused that they were anything but the artistic embellishment they appeared to be.

FAIRBANKS HIT AT AMERICAN

"The Gaucho" is Tale of Adventure and Combat.

In Douglas Fairbanks' new picture, Douglas Fairbanks as "The Gaucho," the American theatre Monday, he is the most dashing part he ever played. A gaucho is a picturesque nineteenth century character little known to the states, and apparently destined to attract more than ordinary attention there as well as in South America.

The scenes of Doug's plays have been veering southward; France, England, Arabia, Spain, the Antilles—and now the Pampas. The story has no definite locality but is laid in the Pampas region at large, making no pretense at historical accuracy, but using the picturesque environment as a background for romance.

Douglas Fairbanks as The Gaucho is a tale of treasure, combat, intrigue and love, concerning the adventures of a bandit who crosses the Cordilleras with his rangers to seize a city grown rich from the offerings of pilgrims to its sacred shrine. For the first time the star has two leading women, one a wild madcap, the other a saintly character. The production has a conflict of love interests, said to be much stronger than in any previous Fairbanks picture.

Under the instruction of real gauchos from Argentina, Fairbanks has become an adept with the boleadoras, which he uses in the picture as one of his many striking feats of prowess.

A girder 98 feet long and weighing 65 tons was recently hauled across London by night, the journey of the huge beam on trolley cars with a traction engine on each end, requiring four hours.

'KING OF KINGS' HERE MONDAY

Eighteen Stars in Great Picture at Ceramic.

It is believed by most directors that they have the making of pictures when they have obtained the co-operation of three first-rate players, but DeMille, in filming the final year and a half of the ministry of Jesus in "The King of Kings," which comes to the Ceramic theatre for three days, starting Monday night, with special matinees Tuesday and Wednesday, was obliged to look for at least 18 players of stellar quality, so varied in character and treatment are the scenes and so many figures in turn become important in the story. Here are the leading roles:

Jesus, H. B. Warner; Madonna, Dorothy Cumming; Magdalene, Jacqueline Logan; Caiaphas, Rudolph Schildkraut; Peter, Ernest Torrence; Pontius Pilate, Victor Varconi; Barabbas, George Seigman; Simon, William Boyd; Little Mark, Mickey Moore; Pharisee, Sam De Grasse; Malchus, Theodore Kosloff; John, Joseph Striker; Matthew, Robert Edeson; Lazarus, Kenneth Thomson; Martha, Julia Faye; Procula, Majel Colman; Mary of Bethany, Josephine Norman.

It may be objected that two or three of the above are only "bit" players, but that is not the case. Each of them at same time or other assume the most vital importance. Thus, Kenneth Thomson, of the raising of Lazarus scene, Theodore Kosloff in the arrest of Jesus, Victor Varconi as Pilate, George Seigman as Barabbas, William Boyd as the bearer of the cross, become absolutely essential to the climax, and during the short times, are just as important as players like the Schildkrauts, Torrence, the Misses Cumming and Logan, and others who live through practically the entire continuity. A feature of this big road show production is a touring symphony orchestra.

TWIN CITY MAN GETS AIR RECORD

MINNEAPOLIS, April 14.—Gene Shank, Twin City flier, yesterday captured the world's record for sustained flight for light airplanes. Shank took off from local airport at 8:50 a. m. Thursday and descended at 9:19 a. m. today. His time, officially recognized, exceeds the previous record of 12 1/2 hours, by more than two hours.

Promotion for Vice Admiral Pratt.
SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 14.—Admiral Louis R. De Steiguer, commander-in-chief of the United States battle fleet, will be succeeded by Vice-Admiral M. V. Pratt, commander of the battleship divisions, on June 26, it was stated today at the United States naval district headquarters here.

Exactly Suits Elderly Persons.
Foley's Honey and Tar Compound quickly stops teasing, harassing coughs that tire out and prevent sleep. Immediately relieves a tickling throat, and stops nervous tacking. Contains no chloroform to dry up secretions, no opiates to cause constipation, that bug-bear of advancing years. Mrs. Jas. A. S.—Fort Worth, Texas, says: "I find Foley's Honey and Tar Compound absolutely reliable and it has helped me wonderfully." Ideal for elderly persons. Try it. Carnahan's 3 Drug Stores.

MAU MAY RUN FOR SENATOR

Dayton Man Reported Candidate for Willis Place.

COLUMBUS, O., April 14.—Republican members of the staff of officials at the federal building here today declared that they had no knowledge of the reported candidacy of Haveth E. Mau, Dayton, United States district attorney for southern Ohio, for the Republican nomination for United States senator from Ohio for the unexpired term of the late Senator Frank B. Willis.

"If Mau has decided to toss his hat into the ring for the short term in the senate, it is news to me," District Attorney W. B. Bartels said. Federal Judge Benson W. Gough refused to discuss Mau's proposed candidacy except to say that he had no knowledge of it. The report that Mau would run for United States senator from Ohio leaked out in Washington late yesterday, it was said.

GENERAL ELECTRIC Refrigerator

The General Electric Refrigerator is almost as portable as an electric fan. It has no drain pipes or connections. It can be placed wherever there is a convenience outlet. Just plug it in—and it works.

Place it in your kitchen. That saves steps. And it also stops many a cold which comes from leaving a warm kitchen for a chilly back porch.

If you have a small apartment, you will be particularly pleased at the quietness with which the General Electric Refrigerator operates. You will be glad that it has no machinery under the cabinet. That every part of its mechanism is sealed inside the air-tight steel casing which is mounted inside the coils.

The cabinets are attractive—so gleamingly white, so strong. They are all set on legs. And they are extremely roomy. The compactness of the chilling chamber allows the greatest shelf area for food.

Judged from every angle, these refrigerators are supremely practical. They are economical to run. Remember that they are made and guaranteed by General Electric. Come in and see them. Compare them with all others before you decide.

Easy Terms Can Be Arranged If You Prefer.
